Reflections for August

Be Mindful

It's super fashionable and surrounded by hype, there are articles in almost every magazine you pick up but mindfulness has been tried and tested for thousands of years. It was practised by the desert Fathers and Mothers, it is found in the Eastern Orthodox Church and most of us know that the Buddhists are great exponents and that is where the great spiritual writer and monk Thomas Merton found it.

Modern mindfulness if that is what you want to call it is not necessarily a religious practice, psychologists would argue that is more like brain training, and clinical studies have shown that it can help reduce anxiety and chronic pain, boost your immune system, lower blood pressure, tackle insomnia, improve your memory and increase your physical stamina.

Companies like Apple and Google run workshops for their staff and some schools are beginning to teach it and an increasing number of NHS doctors are starting to prescribe mindfulness courses as an alternative to antidepressants.

So, what exactly is mindfulness and what can it bring to our Christian life?

Mindfulness can be described as being more fully aware of your own experience in the present moment in a non-judgemental way.

There are four strands to this definition: awareness, experience, the present moment and non-judgement.

Awareness is offered as an antidote to the automatic way our brains tend to work most of the time, awareness can lead to a greater choice in how we use our mind.

Our own experience is intended to counteract the brain's tendency to over analyze. Analysis is an important brain function and many problems can be solved in this way, but not all.

Emphasis on the present moment is also important, in many forms of yoga you are encouraged to think about past experiences, learn from them but not dwell on them, the same for the future, make your plans but come back to the present and appreciate the now.

Having a non-judgemental attitude helps us counter the human tendency to repress those things of which we are ashamed or embarrassed. Learning to forgive, with compassion, is a way to healing, especially forgiving ourselves and accepting forgiveness from others, including and especially God.

That brings me to how mindfulness could help our Christian life.

You are probably thinking of prayer, many of us will have been taught meditative or contemplative prayer, the stilling of the body and mind by focusing on relaxing our muscles, each set are tensed and relaxed beginning at the feet and working to the face and/or breathing techniques, again these are a common feature in yoga.

At my home church, I belonged to a "Circle of Prayer" we gathered and spent 30 minutes in silent prayer, this was not easy at first, we would use "tools" to help us focus, a lighted candle, a key word or phrase, a pebble or shell but often cabbages would disturb our thoughts. What I mean are the everyday thoughts, the washing that needs sorting, the shopping, cutting the lawn. In mindfulness, you need to recognize these thoughts, and bring yourself back to your focus. Eventually we even stopped hearing the bus that came and went during our time together.

Some of these "cabbages" may be much more than the shopping list, and need us to be aware of them; we need to acknowledge them, in that non-judgemental way.

This is where forgiveness comes in, developing an attitude of compassion or kindness, to ourselves and to others.

Mindfulness in the Christian tradition can also be seen in the Gospels, the powerful parable of the Prodigal Son, the “Waking-Up”, being fully aware, is a good illustration

“When he came to his senses, he said: “How many of my father’s hired servants have food to spare, and here I am starving to death!”

‘Being and doing’, this is seen in the visit of Jesus to Mary and Martha, so often we make ourselves so busy that we don’t make the time to just “BE”, to be in the presence of God

“There is need of only one thing. Mary has chosen the better part.”

Also, Jesus said “Abide in me as I abide in you.”

I hope this may have prompted you to look again at your own spiritual practices, you may be happy where you are if not perhaps mindfulness could help you.

None of this comes easily, it does require practice but it can be learned and there are many books and courses to help.

“Be still and know that I am God”

Blessings Denise

Water tap in the churchyard

People tending graves in the churchyard will have noticed that the tap near the new churchyard is no longer functioning and a new tap provides water where the path meets the drive. This is because when the work on the church toilets and kitchen was carried out, the old lead pipes had to be replaced with modern, safer ones.

If we had replaced the lead piping to the old tap, it would have cost almost £3000 pounds more – money we do not have to spare.

Some people have already said that they would like to donate towards the reinstatement of the old tap, close to the new churchyard as it is more convenient for them.

If you would like to pledge some money towards this, please contact the Parish Office on 01543 262211 or e-mail: office@stmichaelmaryjohn.org.uk

At this stage we would like pledges rather than actual donations, until we see if this is going to be feasible.

Many thanks

First Steps

First Steps has been going from strength to strength in recent months, with an increasing number of pre-school children and their carers enjoying a range of crafts and activities as well as Bible stories and action songs, not to mention home-made cakes.

In July, we had our summer picnic. Unfortunately, the weather was rather overcast so we decided to eat indoors. However, we managed to go out for walk around the churchyard looking at the beauties of God's creation – the theme for the month – and ended with a game of football before going back indoors to eat.

We were delighted to see so many people there, and had to use the entire length of the main aisle as a buggy park, and even overflowed into the side aisle!

In September three of our regulars are going to school or nursery and we wish them well.

The first meeting of next term is on Monday 11th September at the usual time of 10am to 11.30am in St Michael's Church. All pre-school age children and their carers are warmly invited to join us then.

Allotment Update

The first arrangement created entirely with flowers from the St Michael's allotment was recently seen in church and has since been followed by others. More about the allotment can be found on the website – www.stmichaelmaryjohn.org.uk

Lichfield Festival Market Stall

For the first time, St Michael's Sewing Bee had a stall in The Close as part of the very popular Lichfield Festival Market. They sold a wide range of items made by members of the group and made a wonderful total of almost £300.

Apart from the financial success, it also created a lot of interest from those attending, about the Sewing Bee and about St Michael's in general, which is always good!

Here's to many more years of happy sewing!

United Benefice Walking Group

The June walk to Fradley Junction was held on a VERY hot day, 29 degrees centigrade. Parking at Bromley Hayes Garden Centre 15 walkers set off to walk along the canal to the Junction. With such a hot day, it was soon clear that a return walk to Bromley Hayes was out of the question. Canalside Café, for a refreshment break, was a welcome sight. We were grateful for the men who went to get cars to taxi us back for lunch at Bromley Hayes restaurant. The restaurant had ceiling fans which we were thankful for. The walk had been checked out two months prior to the date with no thought to what the weather could throw at us.

I was informed the next day that seven soldiers fainted in the heat on horse guards parade on the Saturday at Trooping of the colours in London. Our next walk in July will no doubt be another walk to reminisce on in the future.

To see more of the Walking Group photos, visit

<http://www.stmichaelmaryjohn.org.uk/our-photos-2017.html>

We invite you to join us for our August Walk to Cresswell Green.

We meet at St. Michael's at 10.00 A.M. on SATURDAY 26th AUGUST.

We drive to The Drill Inn, 33 Springle Styche Lane, Burntwood WS7 9HD, for the start of the first part of the walk.

We shall be completing a short walk from The Drill Inn, going along part of the Heart of England Way which follows the Redmoor Brook for part of the way. There are 4 stiles in this section of the walk which includes some rough ground and a hill. This section of the walk is 1 ¼ miles long.

Coffee is at The Drill Inn at 11am where we will also be able to pre-order our lunch. If you do not want to do the first part of the walk you could join us at 11am for coffee and the second part of the walk, which is less challenging.

After coffee, we will walk along a green lane, which also forms part of The Heart of England Way, to Cresswell Green where we will meet the Redmoor Brook again before we return along a minor road to the pub for lunch. There are no stiles on this section of the walk and the ground is level and easy to walk.

We will then return for lunch at The Drill at about 1.30pm.

The 2 walks are 3 ¾ miles long altogether. Depending on the weather, the green lane section of the second part of the walk can be a little muddy in places so walking shoes or boots are advised.

We should be back at St. Michael's by around 3.00pm p.m.

We look forward to seeing you for our August Walk..

Mothers Union July 2017

At the end of May we hosted the Deanery Festival of Thanksgiving, celebrating the ways MU live out our faith in action. The service was taken by Rev. Kareen Lowther, making a very welcome return and our ladies' choir was swelled by some members of other MU's. These events are like family gatherings and afterwards, over refreshments we all socialised and caught up with news. This year there was the added attraction of our new kitchen and toilets which were much admired by our visitors.

The following week many of our members joined the new-ish MU at Wiggington for a service led by Rev. Debra Dyson, another of our "old girls". As always refreshments and conversation followed. Wiggington are not in our Deanery but we are building links with them.

Back in the hall in June we were treated to an outstanding talk about Costa Rica from Rev. Denise Youngs who had holidayed there. Assisted by our own cinematographer, Romulus Plimmer, they gave a very professional presentation. For those who knew little about the country it was a revelation. There is good stewardship of natural resources and eco-tourism is encouraged. Health provision and education are well funded and of a high standard. 95% of inhabitants are literate and older residents who missed out on schooling can attend evening classes. Thanks to the generosity of the old coffee barons the city boasts some beautiful public buildings including a theatre which would not look out of place in Italy. Denise visited a gold museum and another displaying the jade which is to be found in the country.

Her party stayed at a number of eco- lodges and were glad to have a guide to point out many things they might have missed. It was amazing how well many animals and birds could camouflage themselves in the lush forests. On the lower slopes of a volcano they bathed in bubbling mud springs and later in the holiday they went white-water rafting which looked exhilarating or terrifying, according to your point of view.

She gave us a splendid evening and I, for one would happily hear and see it all again.

For our midsummer outing we visited the National Memorial Arboretum at Alrewas. Blessed with a sunny but fresh day we enjoyed a welcome talk about the origins of the Arboretum followed by a ride around a large section of the site in the land train with a commentary about the memorials and gardens as we passed them. Next came tea in the new reception and eating area. Only those who had visited recently had seen this impressive building. To finish most of us walked back across the site to see a splendid display of poppies, cornflower and yellow daisies in a wild flower meadow. The Arboretum is growing every year and it would take several days (and strong legs) to visit everything.

Minutes of St Michael's PCC meeting held on Tuesday 11th July 2017

- Streethay – 31st July is when welcome packs will be delivered to the new houses in Streethay and packs will be available for any other new residents in the area. The Methodist minister from Fradley will be joining us to do this.
- Mission to new housing areas – Simon has been asked by the Bishop to develop a policy on this.
- Thy Kingdom Come was a great success. The new Prayer Corner was very well used and it is likely to become a regular event nationally. Next year it is likely that more branches of Christianity will be joining in.
- Patronal Festival Bishop Clive, Bishop of Wolverhampton, will preside and preach on Sunday 24th September. The morning will begin at 10am when we can meet for coffee and a late breakfast, the service will be at 11am and a bring and share lunch after the service.
- Church roof - the repair work has been finished.
- Office - the phone is due to be transferred on the 19th July. The Virgin fibreoptic line is now in, which means there is now Wifi in the church office. No public access to the wifi will be available. PCC agreed a policy that young people in church should not be given access to the wifi. The code will not be generally available unless requested by an adult for a specific purpose.
- Toilet blockage – this is because there is not enough 'flush' to clear the system. Crofts have been out to look at the system and a broken spring was found in the disabled cistern. Please report if any problems are observed. We may need to stop using paper towels but we cannot use blower driers because we do not have enough electrical capacity.

- First aid – Lyn Sheil will be going on training next week. Sue Jones is already trained. One trained first aider should be available at Lichfield Festival Concerts.
- ICE (in case of emergency) form – Lyn is in the process of developing a form for use in St Michael's
- Mission Action Plan – this should last 5 years, so this year is not a re-write, just an update. PCC broke into groups to discuss and suggest amendments. These were fed back and the MAP will be updated in light of these suggestions. A number of issues were raised that will be added to the agenda throughout the year. A lot of things have been achieved already.
- Tuesday Club – attendance has been very variable. Autumn Programme will be historical and cultural talks.
- Ministry Team – Rev Dr Stephen Barton has been attending church for approximately 6 months. His ministry has been mainly academic recently and he will be preaching at St Michael's on 27th August when he will be introduced to the congregation. PCC accepted his offer to officiate or preach once a month, starting from the next rota.
- Church Hall – no response has been received from the District Council so now a letter will be sent to the Chair of the District Council.

- Health and Safety – ambulance service has confirmed that it now has the correct postcode.

- Churchyard

Maintenance Ray reported that Nick Burton will deal with the leaning pine tree on Health and Safety grounds. It will be felled on the 17th July. A condition survey of the trees will be completed soon. Payback Team have staffing issues and it is becoming very unreliable. Standing Committee have agreed that Michael Toplis will come in with a team to trim the grass, nettles and brambles. They will also raise the level of some overgrowing trees. There is a grass cutting and maintenance regime in place for the new churchyard.

Churchyard Development Plan - 62 replies to the survey have been received from the congregation and the community. John Polhill and Ray will collate the results of the surveys at the end of July. Harriet Carty, from Caring for God's Acre, is visiting on 2nd August to meet the Churchyard Group and look around the churchyard to give her opinions on what needs to be included in the plan. Some Year 6 pupils have also contributed their ideas.

The water tap is no longer working at the lower churchyard.

There is some local support from people who would like to sponsor the work to replace this. It was agreed to put a notice asking for pledges and an article in the magazine.

Maintenance money for the new churchyard comes from funeral fees and a council grant. The old churchyard is maintained by the council as it has a statutory obligation to maintain the churchyard and keep it safe but not necessarily to a 'parks' standard of care.

- Finance – Viv reported on the General Fund as at 30th June.

SULLY

The film shown in July was "Sully: Miracle on the Hudson". We are sorry not to be able to carry our normal review by one of our volunteer reviewers. The DVD can be borrowed if you want to view this exciting movie which tells the extraordinary story of the aircraft captain, Sullenberger, (Sully) who tries to make an emergency landing in New York's Hudson River in 2009 saving the lives of 155 passengers and crew. His A324 had only just taken off from New York's La Guardia airport heading for Charlotte, North Carolina, when it hit a flock of geese which severely damaged both engines. While the media seize upon Sully as national hero, he was severely criticised (for putting his passengers' and crews' lives at risk) by the civil aircraft authorities. Much of the film is taken up with the intricacies of the inquiry which followed the incident. The film is directed by Clint Eastwood, with Tom Hanks playing Sully. The point at issue is - when and where is it possible for responsible people to over-ride official instructions and use their own discretion or instinct. Sully had been instructed to return and make an emergency landing on a runway. He claimed that he did not have enough time to do this. It also emerged that he had not had any training to prepare him for an emergency landing on water. In the final analyses should the successful avoidance of a major disaster put the ethical risks, taken against official advice, in the shade? Discuss!

This is probably not a film for anyone with a fear of flying.

Festival Concert at St Michael's

On the afternoon of Saturday, 8th July, we hosted one of the Lichfield Festival concerts at St Michael's Church. McFall's Chamber Group came and played a range of music, from a Haydn string quartet to some toe-tapping Cuban pieces. As an encore, the cellist surprised everyone by playing the saw in a beautiful setting of Somewhere over the rainbow, which was met with rapturous applause.

They were a charming group who really enjoyed playing in the church and remarked on the wonderful acoustics.

Audience members commented afterwards about the warm welcome they had received at St Michael's: right from the charming parking attendants (Ron Plimmer and Martin Dewes) to the delicious cakes and drinks provided by Brenda Liptrot and her team. The refreshments must have been well appreciated as donations were made of over £180.

It is always a pleasure to host one of these concerts and this year's was particularly enjoyable.

The event also had very dapper Parking Stewards too!

WALL WOMENS' INSTITUTE

FOR JUNE/JULY - MINUTES

A big welcome to members and to our guest speaker Sue Walker. Following our A.G.M. the various posts of Committee have been allotted and agreed.

There are a number of items of interest to keep members busy in the County.

Foxfield Railway 23rd August, Murder mystery evening at Great Haywood and a Countryside walk in September hosted by Cannock Wood and Gentleshaw.

Our speaker for June was one of our members Sue Walker who delighted us with an abundance of work she had done over the years as an embroiderer. From hats to large panels of intricate work and jewellery too. She had had a grandmother who did smocking and her mother knitted. She was born in Wales, but at the age of 9 moved to Surrey. Whilst at school in the 50's she was able to be part of a Needlework Development Scheme at Purley Grammar School which was a collaborative project between art and design education and industry with The Glasgow School of Art sponsored by J & P Coates. She trained at Eastbourne College, St. Albans, and came to the Midlands and taught in Walsall and Lichfield College. A number of us in our W.I. go to her classes once a week and thoroughly enjoy and are inspired by her work and at what we can achieve.

On 14th June we travelled to Hampton Court Castle Gardens in Gloucestershire, it was such a lovely day, the weather glorious and a place not many of us had ever heard of. This Hampton Court was 100 years older than the Hampton Court of London. It was built for Richard IV as a place of safety, but it never did see any kind of foe or enemy. The gardens and surrounding countryside were enchanting, and our tour guide of the house delivered her knowledge extremely well. It was a delightful visit.

Our July meeting is traditionally when we have strawberries for refreshments, and even though the day had been raining and dull, we had a room adorned with lovely fresh flowers and the aroma of the strawberries to enjoy following our speaker.

Various business news, Stonnall had sent their report of the visit to Liverpool of the A.G.M. and this was read out, with the mention of the two Resolutions regarding the Loneliness and Plastic Soup, which had duly been passed. The Plastic Soup had an overall majority of 98.4%, so that was overwhelmingly a very important item.

There were reminders of the Organ Donation legacy packs.

The speaker for this meeting was Mr. Ken Knowles our very own Lichfield Town Crier, with his lady wife, both resplendent in their outfits. His coat being a copy of a Stagecoach driver's of the 18th century. He had been appointed in 2009, following the retirement of Lonza, who many remembered well. Ken has an excellent background for this post that he is so well suited to, from being a teacher, foremost, and an actor with Lichfield's Shakespeare in the Park performances for many years. He has travelled to many countries, such as New Zealand, Canada and Bermuda and won many trophies with his "Crying", and he certainly had us "Crying with laughter as he recalled his childhood stories", and his tales.

The usual monthly walk will be around Fradley on 19th July, but we will have lunch first.

The next meeting will be on August 8th with a talk entitled "Barking Mad" with Chrissy Whereat.

Reminders of our Annual Show on 16th September for plenty of entries and for the duty rota.

Margaret Wilcox, Vice President

WALL NEWS

Knowle Lodge Open Garden Sunday 2nd July

The weather was once again hot for the second opening of the garden in aid of charity. On this occasion, approximately 200 visitors passed through the gate. It was at the end of the event whilst packing up that I realised that we have never taken a photo of the event to include in the magazine. Therefore, I now include a photo taken by the gardener of the happy group of volunteers.

Unfortunately, the photo does not include the rest of the team who came together on the day to give their time helping with washing up, baking and serving. Thanks to everyone. The event helped raise over £200 pounds towards church funds.

Again, we have Kate Cooper to thank for giving us the opportunity to assist at what is a very worth-while event.

The Sunday afternoon followed on from the Rock Choir concert held in St Johns Church, Wall the previous evening. Therefore, this weekend in July was a great success in providing two different social events helping to raise funds.

Cake and Cameras

I hope you will be able to join me on Tuesday 15th August 2-4 pm We will be meeting at St John's Church and weather permitting, we'll be taking close up photos of the plants in the churchyard, for a small display in church and if we find anything really fascinating, perhaps we could even submit our best photos to The Lichfield Mercury for their Gallery item?!

Guarding Letocetum Part One

Marcus Tanicius Gellius hated England. He hated the rain that drummed against his helmet and soaked through his jerkin. He hated the empty rolling fields. He hated the damn natives and their refusal to see sense. Most of all he hated the fact that the rest of the army got all the glory. Every day he watched as they marched through, their armour scratched and battered from fighting and their will to go on unbroken by the hordes of rebels they were bound to face. They were heroes.

Marcus often dreamt of battle, all Romans did, or at least, all Romans without any experience or sense did. It was their calling, their destiny, their reason. Men like Marcus can be found in any army, they are the sort of men with dreams; the kind of men that think battle is some kind of glorious achievement rather than the bloody ordeal of screams and confusion that real soldiers knew it was. There was no telling men like Marcus that they were lucky to be stuck on the cross-roads of war, watching as the 'real' soldiers went by from his position high on the wall, because men like Marcus didn't realise how many of those men weren't coming back.

The idle day dream of the inexperienced soldier was interrupted by the whistling of Quintus Claudius Flavillus, his fellow watchman for the night. Quintus, unlike Marcus, didn't dream of fighting. He dreamt of owning a vineyard, several bottles of wine and dying at a ripe old age in his bed – preferably in that order.

"Anything happenin'?" asked Quintus with the assuredness of a man who knew that there was, in fact, nothing happening.

"No," muttered Marcus bitterly. He stayed firmly at attention, keeping his gaze fixed on the empty fields before him. The muffled sound of laughter and drinking came from the glow of the tiny settlement that had sprung up around the military outpost behind him. He didn't envy them... much.

"That's alright then," Quintus grinned as he sidled up to Marcus and leant against a thick wooden beam, his armour clanking as he did so.

"Aren't you on duty?"

"Yep."

Had this been several centuries later, a tiny cigarette would have appeared from nowhere. As it was Quintus still managed to annoy his companion just as much as if he had blown foul-smelling smoke in his face.

"If the Commander saw you like that -" Marcus started.

"He ain't gonna though, he's in't baths with, what's her face? Petillia."

"That is an unwarranted accusation against a man of his station."

"No it ain't, I seen 'em. Filthy old sod, you can bet Licinia don't know either. And before you get all high 'n mighty, they all do it. Just 'cause he's a man o' breeding don't mean he's adverse to a bit of neither."

"You're depraved."

"Thank you very much," Quintus shot him the kind of smug grin that made Marcus wonder how any kind of man like that could call himself a Roman. A decent Roman should be honourable, courageous, and respectful of the Gods, thought Marcus. That was what his father had taught him. All Quintus's father had taught him was how to covert an oxen without getting caught.

"Reckon we'll get to go home soon?" Quintus asked. Marcus glared. "What? Just tryin' to make conversation."

"We can't think of home, our duty is here. The war continues in the North, they need us here to ensure that contact with the Empire remains intact."

"A simple 'no' would've done. Gods, don't you ever wanna be anywhere else? Be somethin' else than this."

For the first time Marcus turned away from his post to look at the small man at his side. "No."

"Now you're simple, c'mon, there must be somethin'. You can't be happy standing out in the rain all day."

"I never said that I was," Marcus answered gruffly. "For your information, I hope to one day be one of those who walk through here to go on to battle. It'd be glorious. Right."

"It'd be bloody stupid, never catch me doin' that. Die fightin' a bunch of screaming nutters, no thank you."

"It is the only way to die," Marcus insisted, but Qunitus was no longer looking at him but past him. His slightly pudgy face had gone white, his jaw slack and his eyes were bulging.

"Be careful what you wish for."
